

Post: Frozen shrimp salmonella recall

Created by Brittany Bunk on 17-Aug-2021

 Article

 Animal Rights, Health & Nutrition

11

0

0

0

Content

My third post in the past month should be a warning to everyone thinking about eating meat - as it's time we just stop disease outbreaks for once, as they're all manufactured by humans these days (I mean these large-scale ones):

"Avanti Frozen Foods is recalling select shrimp products for possible salmonella contamination.

According to a recall notice posted on the Food and Drug Administration website, there have been nine reports of salmonella-related illnesses linked with the products."

"he recall dated Aug. 13 is an expansion of one from late June, and the company said it "has been initiated out of an abundance of precaution and will cover a large amount of product that has not been associated with any illness.""

read more at <https://finance.yahoo.com/news/frozen-shrimp-sold-whole-foods-200727781.html>

Comments

Be the first to comment