"Remember the old joke about how the meat at fast food restaurants "doesn't have any real meat in it" anyway? These days, that's exactly the point.

While Subway has been taking heat for the alleged mysterious contents of its so-called "tuna" sandwiches, Long John Silver's is using the moment as an opportunity to debut the new, intentionally fish-free items they're soft-launching at five of their California and Georgia locations."
