Comments for Public Posting: It's about time we evolve as human beings and realize mass production of animal agriculture is neither healthy as a diet, sustainable, helpful to the environment (methane gases, destruction of rain forests to produce soy to feed animals), simply can not be conducted in a humane manner for the livelihood of the animals who feel every ounce of pain, fear, anxiety & together with the associated diseases resulting from these animals jammed packed together living in unsanitary conditions. Your farms will admit they simply can not attend to all the animals. What is the difference if these were dogs?(which is normal in other countries to eat). We can't decide what is okay to eat and what is not. In some countries, cows are revered and never eaten as meat. We are decimating our oceans, forests and beautiful animals with souls and feelings. We have the technology to mass produce plant based substitutes along with lab grown meat. Use it! Evolve! It is time for leaders to embrace this change to the status quo. When demand slows, new jobs and industries will form for where there is new demand in these plant based industries etc. It is proven a vegan diet is healthier - think about the health care cost reductions, better quality of life etc. These are just some of The positive consequences for switching to a plant-based diet. It is up to our leaders to take this next step and endorse A plant-based treaty. Whilst It may take time to make a complete transition, imagine a world where people were only eating meat once a week as opposed to every single day. Think about how many animal lives and forests etc will be saved as a result of this. We must take baby steps now. We are constantly evolving. This is but one important step in the evolution of our species as humans

Comments for Public Posting: Please support the Plant Based Treaty! We NEED to transition away from animal-based foods towards sustainable, ethical plant-based foods, or else the climate catastrophe will be even more deadly, vulnerable communities will continue to be polluted by the meat/dairy/egg industry, and more animals will suffer immensely on factory farms.

Comments for Public Posting: In a time where we are facing climate change, and we don't know whether our destruction on this planet is reversible, there is no better time than to move forward and begin to evolve. We must in act change that will allow for future generations to thrive. We can do this with the plant-based treaty. Plant-based eating benefits individuals, their health, our environment, and let's not forget the animal welfare. Why not enable programs and a support system for something that yields so many benefits on so many levels. California is leading the way in various areas. Let this be another one.

Comments for Public Posting: Hello. I am very happy and grateful to have this opportunity to humbly ask that the city of Los Angeles and its council to please support a plant based treaty. I am in full support of this. I am a healthy 54 year old woman. Born and raised in California. My 23 year old daughter and I have enjoyed plant based meals for several years now. I live in the middle of farm county in the Central Valley. The manure smell gets pretty strong here. Especially on hot days, and I live miles away from most livestock farms. I could only imagine what that could be doing to our environment. I support changes to better our planet and a plant based treaty is a positive step to change. Thank you.

Comments for Public Posting: This is a historic opportunity for City Council to endorse a resolution that would set a precedent for large cities across the nation and world. - Endorsing the Plant Based Treaty is a measurable step toward protecting our ecosystems, mitigating the climate crisis, and lessening the suffering of millions of farmed animals. - The Plant Based Treaty encourages a shift to healthier, more sustainable plant-based diets and lifestyles, which is beneficial to humans, farmed animals, and the environment.

Comments for Public Posting: As the lead author of a paper (<https://science.sciencemag.org/content/360/6392/987>, 2018) studying the effects of food on the environment comments, "a vegan diet is probably the single biggest way to reduce your impact on planet Earth, not just greenhouse gases, but global acidification, eutrophication, land use and water use." (Poore, 2019, <https://www.research.ox.ac.uk/Article/2019-10-28-how-do-you-feed-a-global-population-set-to-reach-10-billion>). More and more people are making this choice, but this is not happening enough to slow down the climate change emergency. Many major government health organisations including those of the USA, UK and Canada, agree that a plant-based diet are appropriate for maintaining good health, and in fact it is clear evidence that plant-based diets help to target obesity and prevent chronic diseases (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC5466943/>). Given the extremely compelling reasons and the existential crisis which we are in the midst of, I hope that the City of Los Angeles can put itself on the leading edge of forming a solution by formally endorsing that the Federal Legislation program includes SUPPORT and enters into a Plant Based Treaty making a plant-based approach to food and food purchasing a centerpiece of its greenhouse gas emissions policy.
