Background

We live in the 21st century, which allows humanity to achieve ideals never possible before. Even though contributions by past generations and ancestors got us this far, but society is still not perfect. There are portions that lag and residuals from the past that should be obsolete by now but are not. However, we can all live better lives if we work on removing them.

This discussion highlights archaic modes in society that it no longer needs but are around anyway. These modes may decay humanity, which is why the discussion brings it up: to acknowledge and address them for removal in reality.

The first step in this process is recognizing the problems to address, which this discussion provides. The next step in the process is addressing those issues, which the discussion also provides. The step following, taking action in the real world to remove the 'uncivilized aspects' are not done on the discussion.

That being said, step inside and welcome to the future!
