<https://veganhacktivists.org/> has been getting some funding, but their costs have increased due to entering a period of paying those who are volunteers, but should get a salary. One of those is the team lead for the entire organization.

This is the reply email about her: "So that persons name is Kate, she's amazing, so I really hope she stays! We always do our best to keep our volunteers and team leaders happy when volunteering for us - so far she'd said she's really having a great time designing and managing our team."

That would help get this organization through the winter and spring. A bonus would be another $100-200/mth to be a buffer in case others slack off with donating.

By then, they might have everything put together to be self-sustained. Look out for all of that and more!

Be a part of and help out something (with others) that does both high-tech and vegan, which is very cool! - if you choose to participate (as no one has to do anything in life that no one wants to do).
