Worried about buying from an online store that has animal products (you know which ones), because they may fund those more with vegan purchases or might accidentally buy something that's not vegan, even if they just have a vegan section? Can't go to a physical location due to the outbreak and other reasons, not that they're likely vegan anyway? Not a problem.

Note: there's so many individual product websites - it's too many (for me to keep up with) to post. If anyone has a list, feel free to share.

Here's a list of vegan websites you could buy from worry-free, be it a wide selection or product-specific:

Right here: Beyond Animal (doesn't exist anymore)

Rest is in the excel spreadsheet:

Great list, if any of these would like to share their product feed to Beyond Animal they should give us a shout!

I'll add that if there's any vegan business out there not on these, it'll be encouraging to sell on here :). That way, people don't have to go to non-vegan sellers for them it's really too bad, but none of these really replace Amazon - there are just vegan items on there that aren't on these sites. However, if enough people buy from these, maybe they'll start supplying what they don't have and become better.
