

Problems in the developing world are worse than problems in the developed world.

Depending on the situation. One can argue that a citizen of a developed country is less likely to observe the same issues (even the severity of it, similar or not) than that of a less developed one. We perceive less of it as we believe it isn't as bad because we don't see it while we are bombarded with images, articles and pleas of others believed to be far worse.

Accept Reply

Pros Cons

Thanks for the invite!! I like this topic, and the 'what will life look like when humans achieve longer lifespan' one, and the 'vegan-although I don't come up with nothing, not always claimed. The others aren't that much on my focus. If I understood what you said right, maybe we can get to 5 claims and get this rolling?

@disciplined-wildlife yes, all discussions need 3 claims to get rolling. I just added enough claims to this one to make it 5.

@wglbrl what do you think about changing the image in the background info?

@t1500 I'm fine with that. What did you have in mind? I just used the first world problems meme picture, because it relaxes. I'm open to better.

@wglbrl I just thought I may look unrelaxed to new users. I'll search for one and let you know! Thanks.

I think the debate might also do well if we specified what kind's of problems we are talking about.

Since first world and third world are largely terms that are out of use, maybe we should replace them with 'developed and developing countries'?

@t1500 sounds like a plan, good (great) I made you admin in case you'd like to make other changes, as you seem to understand this discussion well.

@wglbrl Thanks for the co-operation!

@t1500 yay, looking forward to awesome teamwork and collaboration

@wglbrl what do you think about @_ajagat.com

@wglbrl same!

@t1500 I think we're on the right track. I like this one too. @_ajagat.com

@t1500 what about this one (if cropped): @_ajagat.com

or even @_ajagat.com

@wglbrl really like the unplash one you suggested!

yay (I'll add it.)

@t1500 I tried to add it. How does it look? It's not the best proportions to the box given, so I did my best.

@wglbrl it's okay

We could work with it.

@t1500 cool, where do we go from here then? No one's adding claims to this discussion, so we need to find a way to get the discussion going.

@wglbrl I'll add some. Is there any way to make it more popular?

@t1500 adding claims does make it more popular, which is a start. Another way is to invite people that you believe are also interested in the topic and write a note to get them interested. Also, giving them a higher role (like writer) helps too.

@wglbrl these are really nice suggestions. Working on it!

@t1500 yay, I can do the same too!

@t1500 I invited a few people from @_ajagat.com. If you'd like to do more, go right ahead!

@wglbrl sure thing, will do!

@t1500 I'm thinking of changing the picture. Even though I helped, I found a picture that helps illustrate the distribution of countries for better comparison. @_ajagat.com. What do you think?

@wglbrl In that pic they use least developed as well, which would in principle be excluded from 'developing'. They are part of 'third world' though. Are you sure you want to exclude them from the comparison?

@t1500 originally this discussion was a comparison of first world to first world countries. I generally don't want to. Maybe we can adjust the language of the intro to say that 'developing' does include the least developed, or 'third world' countries. That will help those who still think of those terms.

@t1500 Oh, but not too long, I'm really excited for it (by tomorrow ok?), if you have ideas for streamlining, feel free!

@wglbrl will give thoughts on it tomorrow, if you don't mind.

@t1500 ok!

@wglbrl I kinda like the one we have right now better tho.

Agree with @baahaiyye actually

@baahaiyye @t1500 I'll add it to the intro then

@wglbrl great, thanks!

Good job @wglbrl!

@baahaiyye @t1500 good job team. You all saw it then?

@wglbrl yeah!

@baahaiyye yay, awesome!

@t1500 I think you have a handle on the ideas in this discussion - so you're an admin here. However, as I said, how you put the words together in your claims needs some work still, so just tag me for now. Here's an article to help (I may've provided it before though): @_ajagat.com

@wglbrl Sure, will do! Thanks a ton! Looking forward to more engaging discussions with you.

@t1500 me too! I'm think I'll make you admin in the others too, but the idea of tagging me for claims would hold there too :)

@wglbrl thanks! looking forward to contributing here.

@t1500 I believe you can do well :)

@wglbrl thanks!

Chat about this discussion...