

Transhumanism is the next step in human evolution.

SUGGESTED CON

Transhumanism is founded on the assumption that external measures of mechanical efficiency would improve the quality of life for humans. It also assumes that human agency is binary and can be empirically measured. Can kindness, wisdom and love be measured? Are the core values that make life worth living improvable by mechanics? Only if the story of hyper industrialized imperialism is the only narrative. It is not.

- Thanks everyone for writing in their thoughts on this topic. What do you think about this topic's relevance in today's world?
- You (8.8k) · 2y
- @Zenyata welcome to kialo and this discussion. What brings you to this one in particular? Also, how will this discussion help you with your education and future? You don't have to answer these, but it's good to know if I can help

- I am interested in trans-humanism, the quest for enlightenment, expanded knowledge, conscious.
- Zenyata (4) · 2y
- Are you a bot?
- Zenyata (4) · 2y
- *consciousness
- Zenyata (4) · 2y
- I guess thinking about ethics prepares you for future decision making. And when faced with the decision to change my body, I want to be ethically prepared.
- Zenyata (4) · 2y
- @Zenyata nope. I'm just a person who started this discussion. Maybe one day when transhumanism takes off, I'll create bots of myself to do my work for me lol. I'm a futurist and have questions on how we can progress society forward. I really want to make the world a better place to live in for future generations and believe one of my roles is expanding the world's collective wisdom. That'll help me arrive at solutions faster. I also want to be able to accomplish more with what I have and transhumanism is a good way to go, but that's another story. I'm more about preparedness, possibilities, and accomplishment than ethics, so it's nice to see others complementing my focus.

- I added more claims. Good work everyone, keep up bringing in these useful, intellectual claims.
- You (8.8k) · 1y
- @lms I was wondering if you've gotten around to working on the claims yet, as I would like to start adding mine to yours

- @vegforlife Sorry, my semester got really intense really suddenly. I'll be dding them over the next couple of hours!
- lms (2.3k) · 11mo
- @lms oh no. That can happen. School's first, but when you're able to. Thanks!
