- Teletportation would be beneficial if it exists.
- SUGGESTED CON
- One could accidentally teleport to a place that is not safe, for example a place where currently a natural disaster is happening, or a crime is taking place. It is nearly impossible to regulate the areas where one can teleport freely to

- Teletportation would be beneficial if it exists.
- SUGGESTED CON
- New rules and regulations would be required for teletportation along with appointed authorities to enforce these rules and keep track of whether the rules are being followed.

- It would be a detriment to vehicle businesses. For example, train or bus transport industries would be destroyed. The car industry might also be negatively affected.
- SUGGESTED PRO
- A large portion of our societies are dedicated to things we would not need with teletportation (e.g. transportation, communication, home security etc.) This would mean that, in addition to being detrimental to vehicle businesses, it would be detrimental to society.

- Teletportation would be beneficial if it exists.
- SUGGESTED CON
- A lot of people could be paranoid of the use of teletportation as when you teleport, you are being disintegrated and reintegrated (killed and cloned) the idea of that is too scary for people to use

- Teletportation would be beneficial if it exists.
- SUGGESTED PRO
- It would be beneficial and will open many opportunities to explore. Teletportation might decrease business of vehicles and other transportation businesses, but many new jobs would replace what is lost. A lot of "negative" issues depend on how the teletportation works (is it a machine? or does it biologically allow you to move at incredible speeds?) But if teletportation did exist, the pros definitely outweigh the cons.

- Teletportation would be beneficial if it exists.
- SUGGESTED PRO
- I think it already exists. Google ley line maps. Google pilot mountain NC portal. Google bigfoot portals.
