| SUGGESTED PRO 1y ago NoFreeWillMurad (65) Considering that VR world will support a good "life" for everyone, people should voluntarily be able to choose in VR world without the everyday problems they have in the real world. | SUGGESTED CON 12mo ago Doobjo (627) VR is technology created by humans who make mistakes, therefore it is dangerous to subject someone to neurological adapters (assuming they can feel objects in the VR world). |
| If there's reasonable basis to believe that VR world can realistically exist, then it's an opportunity (maybe even responsibility) to pursue it. | The first virtual reality spaces won't be utopias. Instead, they'll be buggy and not comfortable or healthy places to live in. |
| The process is already happening. | The world outside of VR will go downhill. |
| VR worlds allows people to transcend their existence and live transhuman lives. | Life no longer what we could consider normal. |
| | Probably, the taxation needed to accomplish it wouldn't be welcomed. |
