| Farmers and food are suffering, so it's a logical step to start the transition towards moving the food system elsewhere. | There is a lack of better locations with the same features and capabilities that California has. |
| | California's production is doing well, so it shouldn't be changed until it's taking major hits consistently. |
| | Transitioning would be riddled with difficulties. |
| | It would be costly. |
| | The infrastructure is already here. |
