Pros Cons

Even though technology has lead to neotribalism, other technologies (like the neuralink) will overcome this short-living trends and bring us to the mass society species we're trending towards.

Although humans are able to overcome biology in so many ways, since tribalism is so integrated into us, it's difficult to see it be fully removed for us to actually become a mass society.

Neotribalism works, because in life, choices need to be made, and evolution has given that ability to humans to make decisions and choose sides to survive.

If we move towards a post-scarcity world, then it's likely that becoming a mass society will help.

Neotribalism gives one a sense of identity.
