

Virtual reality (VR) is the best format for online education.

Pros	Cons
SUGGESTED PRO Using a VR-based classroom setting would allow students to get one-on-one time with their teacher if they need it. Accept Reply	SUGGESTED CON nope. maybe for others it is just cheap to have vr box but for someone who can't afford it it is very expensive. Accept Reply
VR provides another option to people who learn better in it than school, as there is not a one-size-fits-all method to teaching/learning.	SUGGESTED CON would require a lot of techno. advancement to reach the level where VR classes could really show its efficiency Accept Reply
It allows for opportunities that can't happen in reality.	SUGGESTED CON No virtual reality are for games an entertainment only. Putting online education into the mix, would just confuse the students. You can only learn by a real experience/real experiment rather (technically and/or sufficiently) and not to mention virtual reality wouldn't have the proper tools to conduct online education. Accept Reply
People can learn by practicing on simulations without risking a being's safety.	SUGGESTED CON VR could deprive pupils of using imaginations. People talk of VR as a means of firing pupils imagination, but what is a pupil to imagine if you are already showing him. You don't need to imagine it, let's show you. You know how you sometimes get disappointed when your favorite novel is turned into a movie, like that's not how you pictured it. Accept Reply
	VR should not be a complete substitute for human interaction.
	VR might not provide the best educational system for students
	VR technology is not fully developed and could get in the way of learning
	Teaching would be harder in VR.
